

IRS Releases 2019 Standard Mileage Rates

The Internal Revenue Service has updated the Standard Mileage Rates for 2019. The standard mileage rates are optional rates taxpayers can use to calculate the deductible costs of operating their car for either business, medical, moving, or charitable purposes.

Starting on January 1, 2019, the standard mileage rates are as follows:

- 58 cents per mile for business miles driven
- 20 cents per mile for medical or moving purposes
- 14 cents per mile driven in service of charitable organizations (remains the same)

According to the IRS, the standard mileage rates for business are calculated from a study conducted annually on the fixed and variable costs of operating a vehicle, such as oil prices, insurance rates, and maintenance costs.

Employers should inform any employees who use their personal motor vehicle for business of the new rates, and make sure any deductions made since January 1 comply. If you have any additional questions regarding the standard mileage rate, feel free to contact us.

This content is provided with the understanding that HR Knowledge is not rendering legal advice. While every effort is made to provide current information, the law changes regularly and laws may vary depending on the state or municipality. The material is made available for informational purposes only and is not a substitute for legal advice or your professional judgment. You should review applicable laws in your jurisdiction and consult experienced counsel for legal advice. If you have any questions regarding this blog, please contact HR Knowledge at 508.339.1300 or email us.